Cleanliness Discourages Household Pests
As Does the Use of Insecticides and Rodenticides

Summertime, and the living may be easy for unwanted houseguests, such as, ants. However, these perennial pests are less likely to stay where they can't "freeload" meals easily! Now is the time to maintain a high level of cleanliness to discourage ants, flies, mosquitos and other household pests from home building on your property.

The first line of defense is keeping ants and other insects outside. Be sure screens fit tightly and have no tears. Check that windows and doors fit snugly, too. Use caulking compound, weather stripping or modeling clay around crevices in entryways, foundation, water and radiator pipes and cracks around sinks, toilet bowl, baseboards and between floor boards.

Discourage insects from building nests by wrapping garbage securely, keeping garbage cans tightly lidded, and occasionally scrubbing the cans with suds and water. Where pests have set up home, treat with a suitable insecticide being careful to follow label directions.

Inside the home, be sure to keep food out of reach as much as possible. Scrape and wash dishes right after a meal or snack. Store leftovers and dry goods in containers with tight-fitting covers. Use a sudsy sponse frequently to wipe countertops, appliances and the outside of storage containers. Wash around water pipes, sinks, and toilets; behind drawers and washtubs; shelves and storage places, especially in the kitchen and bathroom. Scrub up baseboards, window frames and cracks and openings in walls, floors, and cupboards. Crumbs, spills and food smears are an open invitation to come for dinner.

Don't overlook the floor. Wash away spills promptly and sweep up crumbs as often as necessary.

Garbage is a gourmet delight to household pests. Try not to leave any food peelings or leftovers open to invasion. Small amounts can be securely wrapped or placed in bags and sealed. Always rinse bottles, jars and cans, especially if collected for return to the store or disposal at a local recycling center.

Keep wastebaskets and kitchen garbage cans clean, too. Empty the contents when necessary but at least once every day. As a special tip, line trash baskets with special bags, grocery bags, plastic bags or newspaper to make it easy to empty them and to keep them clean.

Should ants find their way into a home, get rid of them right away. Treat the nest with liquid insecticide; if outdoors, destroy it by pouring on boiling water or ashes.

Keep these pests out by spraying an insecticide on outside walls, cracks and openings and indoor surfaces. In the kitchen, put insecticide on cracks with a small paintbrush so that it does not spread to utensils or food!

Adhere to basic safety precautions when using insecticides or rodenticides. Keep these and other chemicals in a safe place - away from children and pets. Do not store near food, under sinks or in medicine chests. Keep children and pets out of a room when using these products. After working with sprays or liquids, wash face and hands and change to clean clothing. Then wash the clothing before reuse.

Area Farmers Part of National Acreage and Livestock Survey

Producers in Appomattox County will be contacted in late May or early June as part of a nationwide effort to properly estimate 1975 spring planted acreages and current livestock numbers.

Representative farmers in this area will be visited between May 22 and June 4 by Danny L. Johnson of Bedford County assisting the Virginia Crop Reporting Service. Mr. Johnson will ask about acreages planted and for harvest and also about cattle, hogs, and sheep on the farming unit. Across the county thousands of similar interviews will be conducted and many other farmers will be contacted by mail. All information will be held confidential and only State and national estimates will be released.

The objective, Mr. Johnson said, is to produce reliable and unbiased information for producers as a guide for their marketing operations. He noted that these estimates help stabilize market conditions by providing both growers and buyers with official estimates of production. Consequently, rumors and trade projections can not be a factor in setting supply and price levels.

The State and national acreage information will be published in late June and for cattle late July.

The REAL Smokey Bear Is Not "Retiring"

The real Smokey Bear - - the upright bear with the familiar ranger's hat, Levis, and shovel is alive and well and spearheading his 32nd advertising campaign to protect America's forest from man-caused fires.

Smokey was born in an artist's studio instead of a den in a forest. He was first featured in the forest fire prevention campaign of the state foresters and the U.S. Forest Service in 1945.

Then, in 1950, a game warden in New Mexico rescued a bear cub who had been badly burned in a forest fire and nursed him back to health. Someone got the idea of flying this cub back to the National Zoo in Washington and naming him after the already-famous Smokey Bear. And there this live Smokey has lived for some 25 years.

During the past year, as it became apparent that live Smokey had become a very old bear and would soon have to be "retired", many people have gotten the impression that the entire Smokey Bear campaign was about to be shelved.

Nothing could be more untrue! The real Smokey Bear will definitely continue to be the national symbol of forest fire prevention for America.

During a brief ceremony at the National Zoo on May 2, the live bear called Smokey since 1950 was officially retired and the title transferred to a younger bear of the same color and size. So for many years to come there will be a live bear called Smokey at the National Zoo.

But remember . . . the real Smokey Bear is the one you see in public service announcements on television and in newspaper and magazine ads and on posters and card cards. Like Little Orphan Annie, he'll never grow old.

ENERGY SAVING TIPS FOR THE WEEK

1. Use cold water rather than hot to operate your food disposal. In addition to saving hot water this helps get rid of grease - the cold grease solidifies and can be ground up and washed away.

2. Since high humidity makes our bodies hold more heat, we should minimize moisture making activity such as mopping and washing dishes and perform these tasks during the coolest part of the day.

3. Cover all liquids stored in the refrigerator (especially frost-free models). Moisture is drawn into the air from uncovered liquids making the refrigerator work harder.

4. Oven cooking is more economical than surface cooking. Ovens require energy only periodically since the insulation holds in the heat. Cook tops consume energy the entire time they are in operation.

5. When does 350° equal 325°? Ceramic, glass and stainless steel dishes retain heat better than other materials. When baking with these dishes, the oven setting can be lowered 25°

6. Energy can b drying garments o dry condition if you them later. If you not have this o shorten drying time.

7. When lights ar outdoors for secur electric cell which off automatically a back on at dus investment for conscious consu

The presentation was made at the annual membership banquet of the Southern Home Furnishings Association at its 63rd annual meeting. The award was made by Weddie Huffman, Director of Industrial Relations for Burlington Industries. The Willis Award is presented annually in honor of John Willis and Benjamin J. Willis of Norfolk, by members of their families. The award, a silver punch bowl, ladle and tray, is given to the retailer in the tri-state area who has best served his industry, his community and his God. The vote is by a jury of his peers within the industry. Mr. Schewel was born and reared in Lynchburg. He graduated from Washington and Lee University in 1941 and then enlisted in the Air Corps. Upon discharge in 1946 he had attained the rank of Captain. He and his wife Helene, a 1947 graduate of Randolph Macon College have three children - one of whom, Marc, is also employed in the company business.

Schewel has served two five years terms on the board of the Southern Home Furnishings Association. He has also served on the Executive Committee and Investment Committee. Locally, Mr. Schewel has served as president of Agudath Sholom Congregation and as a Board member of the Beth Sholom Home of Virginia. He either is now, or has been active in the Lynchburg Washington and Lee Alumni Association; Greater Lynchburg Retail Merchants Association; Lynchburg Mental Health Association; Lynchburg Lodge 1211 B'nai B'rith; Piedmont Heart Association; Central Lynchburg Association; and of the Advisory Board of Randolph Macon Woman's College. He is a member of Kiwanis and of the Elks. He is also a member of Hill City Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rites and Kazim Temple. He is currently chairman and is past treasurer of the Salvation Army Board. He is a member of the board of Virginia National Bank/Lynchburg and former board member of Oakwood Country Club. Proving that a man can be with honor in his own home town, in 1973 he was honored with the Brotherhood Citation of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for "life time devotion to the ideal of Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God, devotion and service to one's own religious group and civic service and leadership.
